

“We lost our house to a fire and rebuilt it with Lemel Homes. From the start until the end of the project, there was always someone that responded to our needs. Joe and John helped with the design, taking a Lemel model home and tweaking it to reflect our design ideas.

Once we were able to start construction, Todd worked with us to get the foundation in and guided us through the many obstacles we encountered, including the five feet of frost in the ground due to the long and very cold winter and soil that was not structurally sound to properly support the house.

Rich kept the project going once framing started and was able to finish the house in four months, which was weeks before the estimated deadline. Sandy helped with all of the many selections and was prompt with responses to our many questions about selections. They were a great team to work with including their subcontractors.

Everyone we encountered through the project was both helpful and friendly from Lemel staff to all of the many other trades that helped build our house.”
